Free and confidential services
across North Yorkshire and York

Stakeholder Briefing - May 2015

Update on the new sexual health service for North Yorkshire and York

York Teaching Hospital NHS Foundation Trust has been commissioned by North Yorkshire County Council and City of York Council to deliver a new integrated sexual health service across North Yorkshire and York. The new service will commence on the 1st July and the service will be provided under the recognised name YorSexualHealth.

Benefits of the new service will include improved access to services and better training and support to professionals.

One advantage of the new service will be the introduction of 'One stop shop' clinics providing contraception, STI tests and treatments for all ages. This means that in most cases people will be able to have all their sexual health needs met by one practitioner without the need for onward referral.

We are working in partnership with GP Alliances to maximise access and choice for people. We are also working with North Yorkshire AIDS Action to provide Services for People Living with HIV and with Yorkshire MESMAC to provide Community Outreach Services as part of the new integrated service.

Improved access to services will be achieved through:

- YorSexualHealth Centres in Northallerton, Harrogate, Scarborough, Selby and York
- New community clinics across all district council areas

- Targeted 'Satellite' clinics (including those targeted towards young people)
- Provision for military personnel
- Delivery of services in healthcare settings (including GP surgeries)
- The use of "virtual" clinics including telephone consultations and postal treatments
- A specialist clinical outreach team
- Improved professional support, training and leadership will be delivered by:
  - The implementation of a new sexual health training service
  - Clinical leadership and advice
  - Management of a new Condom Distribution Service and the Chlamydia Screening Programme
  - An improved YorSexualHealth website with a dedicated online resource for professionals
